

Make a difference in a child's life: Become a volunteer literacy tutor

The Learning Disabilities Association, Fraser South Chapter offers an after-school tutoring program for students aged 7 – 14 who struggle with reading or writing. Adult volunteers work one-to-one with students to develop their reading, comprehension, and writing skills. Your commitment is twice a week for 11 weeks. This is a rewarding, responsible volunteer position, and valuable work experience for anyone considering working with children.

We offer:

- 21 hours of initial training
- regular supervision and feedback from a qualified special education teacher
- 3 hour in-service training
- a valuable reference on completion of tutoring

More details on this position are available at www.ldafs.org

Training for our next tutoring session begins in September 2010. Volunteer commitment is from October 4 to December 16, 2010 (four hours per week). Are you interested? To find out more, come to our next information session. Registration is not required.
